Internal Growth	Disposition of properties for which rent is expected to decline
	To be the portfolio expected for more internal growth than before (the rent decrease rate being 1.94% for the properties sold during the most recent two years)
External Growth	Early implementation of large-scale exterior wall construction using the proceeds from the disposition.
	As the upcoming major large-scale construction works, including the early implementation of large-scale exterior wall construction using the proceeds from the disposition, will be completed in the 29th FP (the first FP after the merger), the majority of the depreciation expense (approximately 1.6 bn per FP) can be allocated for reinvestment.

Macroeconomic Conditions in Rental Housing Market

1. Fundamentals	Both the salary level and rent are on an upward trend, and the economy continues to perform well, though implying some weakness.
2. Supply-Demand Balance	Private rental housing market has expanded . Supply in each city tends to be restrained, and the supply-demand balance in metropolitan areas, etc. is tight.
3. Transition of Rent and Deposit as well as Condition of Rental Housing Market	Rent is on an upward trend, and deposit levels are showing a slight recovery, but remain at a low level
4. Rent Revision Rate	Rent of existing stock is on an upward trend, and the market conditions indicate that the rent is not declining despite the age of the building.
5. Analysis of Factors for Excess Population Inflow and Trends, etc.	Population inflows to central cities in each region continue, and inflows to urban areas, especially metropolitan areas, are on the increase due to an increase in the jobs-to-applicants ratio.
6. Future Population per Administrative Regions	Population in each city will continue to increase until around 2030 to 2040, and households will continue to slightly increase thereafter.
7. Forecast of Number of Households per Type of Family	The number of rented housing will continue to increase until 2040. In particular, single-person households will be the core of those households
8. Trends in Number of Foreigners	Although the number of Japanese is decreasing, the number of foreigners is on an increasing trend and is expected to increase further in the future.

Distribution

We will flexibly utilize reserve for temporary difference adjustment and distribution reserve to contribute to unitholder's value, and seek for further expansion while aiming to maintain stabilized distribution per unit at JPY 2,150.

Reserve for Temporary Difference Adjustment (as of September 30, 2019)

JPY 6,463 million

If negative goodwill arises from the merger, additional reserve will be recorded. If positive goodwill arises, the amount equivalent to amortization cost will be reversed.

Distribution Reserve (as of September 30, 2019)

JPY 232 million

JPY 480 million, a portion of the capital gain arising from the disposition, will be reserved additionally.

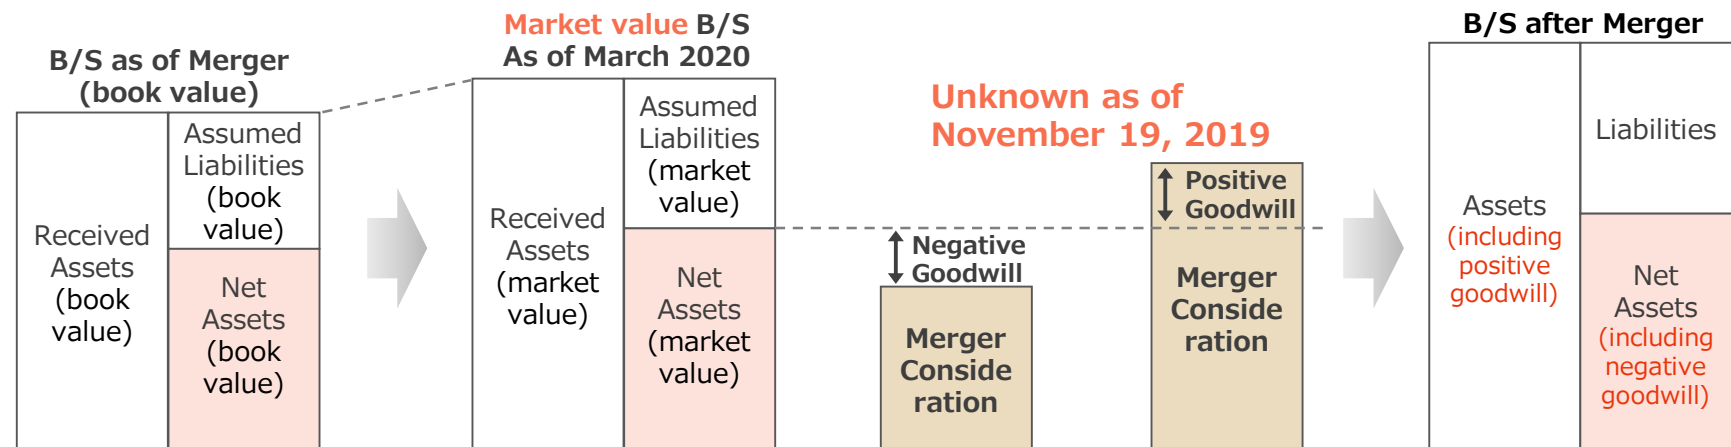

About Goodwill

- As a result of this merger, positive or negative goodwill is expected to arise; however, as of November 19, 2019, the exact amount of such goodwill is unknown. Therefore, the performance forecast after the Merger as announced on November 19, 2019 does not reflect the positive or negative goodwill.

NHI (absorbed corporation)

DLI (New REIT)

Negative goodwill will arise if merger consideration is less than the market value-based net assets.

Positive goodwill will arise if merger consideration is more than the market value-based net assets.

	Positive Goodwill	Negative Goodwill
Handling in B/S	Recorded as an intangible fixed asset	Portions not appropriated to the distribution in the first fiscal period after the Merger will be recorded as net assets (as RTA) to the extent necessary to satisfy the conduit requirements (i.e., dividends payout ratio of more than 90%).
Handling in P/L	Scheduled to be amortized as operating expenses on a straight-line basis within 20 years	Recorded as extraordinary income in the first fiscal period after the Merger
Measures taken for distributions	The amount equivalent to the amortization of goodwill is to be distributed by reversing the distribution reserve or the reserve for temporary difference adjustment (RTA) of JRH, and the amount of goodwill amortization in excess of both reserves is to be distributed by reversing the allowance for temporary difference adjustment (ATA).	As long as there is a balance of RTA, 1% or more of initial reserve amount, which is the averaged amount for 50 years (100 fiscal periods), is scheduled to be reversed and appropriated to the dividend every fiscal period. This can also be appropriated to extraordinary or incidental losses, such as loss on sale, impairment and retirement losses.
